All That Could Be

Short film | Docufiction | Original title: Alles wat kan zijn | Duration: 17:40 | Language: Dutch

Logline

An introverted millennial goes on vacation with his sister's artist group where he is challenged to push his boundaries.

Synopsis

On the drive to the holiday home Kathlyn reassures her little brother Jorryt. He is tense but warns his sister to mother him. When they arrive, he is quickly overwhelmed by the exuberance with which the members of the group celebrate life. Determined to give the group a chance, Jorryt soon starts to question whether he can hold his own against the manifestations of colours, cries, sexual gestures and creative excesses.

Director's biography

Sam van Zoest studied at film schools in Edinburgh and Bangalore. He previously made the interactive film Grandfather's Century and the audiovisual installation Undercurrent. Sam followed a volunteer in a Greek refugee camp for the short documentary In The Right Place. His next film is LATER, a short doc about the late effects of childhood cancer, which he is co-directing with Annick Sickinghe.